This history is the flower of the ages that have gone before. Hence it is impossible to give it adequately as a fragment, and to those who do not know previous history. The nature of its events also makes it a difficult acquirement for children, undisciplined in the art of inferring causes; and the events themselves have little of the picturesque for the imagination of youth, though rich in interest for the matured mind. But it is this fragment of the great narrative of time, for which alone there has been made any provision by law, in much of the common school teaching of the United States; and therefore a section of Bem s Chart of Universal History has been modified to meet the case. A chronological outline of the chain of events may certainly be impressed on the mind, by means of that natural memorizer, the sense of sight, addressed by these colored symbols, before historical causes can be appreciated; and chronology is the relation of paramount importance in history, because, including synchronism, it holds in its arms, as it were, all other relations. In the accompanying maps of the last four centuries of time, nothing is represented in colors but what pertains to that territory which now bears the name of the United States.
